

Bus 96

By Amelia Wright

4th Grade, McMurray Elementary

Previously, a Bus driver was arguing with a student and was not looking where he was going, and fell into the ocean but after being submerged in water, it came out of the ocean and it became UNEARTHED.

One month later, two twin girls named Ella and Etella got on their bus. Since the incident, the girls had been quiet, but their mom had been calling them every day to make sure that they got on the right bus.

When she called, her voice was serious. She said, “girls you got on bus 96.” (puff) “No way that bus is gone,” said Ella. Etella looked out the window and saw the bus number, which was 96. The same bus driver yelled out, “Ready to hit the water kids!”

The outside of the bus was invisible until it hit the water. The bus was slowly sinking into the water and the girls held their breath.

Luckily, a guy saw them and got them out, got them home, and helped them get dry off. At the end, the girls did tell their story eventually they did die, but the body was never found. The house did get haunted the night when they died.
